

A plain speaking rolé in "His Bridal Night" interludes with dancing. Here's Roszika (or it may be Yancsi) keeping in trim.

Roszika?
Yancsi?
They're the Dolly Sisters, any way you look at 'em.
They have a house.
The house has a roof.
Have a look on the house

And this is Yancsi (unless it's Roszika) emulating her twin. Emulating a twin is difficult, as you know if you've ever tried.

Yancsi's smile is broader than Roszika's, unless Roszika happens to be imitating Yancsi. Take your choice.

Seeing them together makes it easier. Roszika is half an inch taller than Yancsi (or vice versa).

Jennie and Rosie (translated from the Hungarian) always have a whole pair of half socks between them.

There are two ways of dancing the Bridal Night One-Step. The Dollys dance it both ways at once, thereby exhibiting their combined versatility.